

Reform Is On The Horizon

Meek, Jay, Mr. Rubin, Mr. Kraft, and Van Jones are onto something that is truly special here moguls have unified combining their resources to form the Reform Alliance in search of a judicial rescue – thinking outside the box there's a serenity and tons of wealth sharing our thoughts, resources, and mental pastures today conglomerates and billionaires are fighting with us not against us 50 million plus in financial backers –

I'm talking total opposites and average minds collaborating in search of equality and justice reform even though parole and probation has slavery perceptions reform has been long overdue but digested as the norm –

as a society, we are tired of being tired so we are actively searching with all our God-given gifts the residue of oppression and the straw man continues to be detrimental the double standards that are before us can no longer be alleged a myth – looking in the eyes of politics the disrespect has exceeded blatant parties within parties are relying on deceit, not recalling, or pleading the fifth the thefts of equality and love on every level have turned into a category five hurricane from swirly winds and a light mist – today, public safety factors and law applications differ depending on race, cultures, and demographics for centuries entangled in chaos we've been praying for rescues but failing in humility and systematics – moving forward, decade after decade, our foresight continues to be selfish, situational, and opportunistic Colin Kaepernick like so many before him worked for equality but they were perceived as nuclear threats with warhead ballistics – submerged in blue-collar efforts it will take billions of dollars it's undeniable image-wise judicially there is no justice or reprieve we have to disassemble the preponderance of the evidence concepts which are truly smoke screens for all we have to do is believe – so undoubtedly probation and parole boards have too much range, overhead, and executive power even after all the power and purposes statistics and history supports even the sweetest of laws can quickly turn sour –

the corridors of hip hop have crushed so many barriers it's time we self-correct and focus for an excelling society keeping in mind our actions and resumes can no longer contradict our PR prepared statements or alleged acts of sobriety – nor can we continue to build on or expose our families and lungs to contaminates, radioactive materials, or asbestos individually although all the mentioned are extremely cancerous so is our criminal justice system and it's provided Lexus Nexus –

Meek Mill, Jay Z, Michael Rubin, Robert Kraft, and Van Jones I wholeheartedly support your movement.

Collectively we share a vision for equality and criminal justice reforms for the incarcerated, probation, and parole departments.

Undoubtedly the destruction and reform are required from our grand jury processes, overcharging & over indicting mentalities, sentencing disparities, the double standards of policing and law applications, the double standards of constitutional and civil protections, our probation & parole departments, and so much more.

Like Meek and his family, I'm aiming to learn why constitutional and civil protections don't apply to millions like us before or after an alleged criminal history.

Be sure to also check out these titles:

The Power & Purpose Of Sharing My Story, Mass Incarceration v. The Politicians, The Dr. Blasey Ford/Kavanaugh Supreme Court Explosion, Humility Is Today's Mortgage Payment Due, The Oyez222 Press ITL (Inside The Lines) Ongoing Miscarriages of Justice, In My Lifetime Iconic Individuals Volume 1, and so much more.

January 24, 2019, Associated Press reported:

New York – A coalition of big names in sports and entertainment is taking on criminal justice reform.

Rappers Meek Mill and Jay Z and the owners of the Philadelphia 76ers, Brooklyn Nets, and Super Bowl-bound New England Patriots came together in New York to announce the launch of an organization that will lobby for changes to state probation and parole laws.

The Reform Alliance will be led by Van Jones, a CNN host and activist who served as an adviser to former President Barack Obama.

Sixers co-owner Michael Rubin said the group is dedicating $50 million to the effort.

Mill became a symbol for criminal justice reform activists after a judge in Pennsylvania sentenced him to two to four years in prison for minor violations of his probation conditions in a decade-old gun and drug possession case. He spent months in prisons before a court ordered him released.

The performer said the Reform initiative "is one of the most important things I've ever done in my life" and that he's speaking "for people who don't have a voice."

About 2.2 million people in the U.S. are incarcerated, and about 4.5 million are on probation or parole, according to government statistics.

"If you thought my case was unfair, there are millions of others dealing with worse situations and caught up in the system without committing crimes," said Mill, who remains on probation until 2023. "With this alliance, we want to change outdated laws, give people hope and reform a system that's stacked against us."

Jones said the Reform Alliance is taking aim at the cycle of probation and parole violations that leads people back to prison.

"That is the revolving door that keeps people back in and back in and back in," Jones said. "We're going to dismantle that revolving door."

76ers, Nets, Patriots partner with Meek Mill, Jay Z for justice reform.

Patriots owner Robert Kraft said the current system "is not good for America." "We can make America better if we really cure this problem," he said.

For more Google Meek Mill.

Amongst society, via the various Siris of the world and our smartphones we have unlimited power in the palm of our hands. Simply ask.

Written (02/04/19) by Clifton A. Jackson

Your likes, repost of link, tags, and hashtags are sincerely appreciated.

