

Just Do It

Inspired by the Colin Kaepernick and Nike campaign. Just do it.

Shout out and much love to the corporate figures and supporting ingredients of Nike the conglomerate and Nike the family. Simply thank you for being you.

Now if I may so to speak allow me to tackle the bull by the horns. So I'll hop right in the fire of this issue.

On September 19, 2018, per GMA it was reported on –

The ongoing dispute over the allegations made by Dr. Blasey Ford against Kavanaugh alleging the sum total of sexual assault.

To abreast yourself after googling GMA for this particular interview.

Dr. Blasey declines to testify in front of America's leading representatives regarding her allegations of sexual assault committed by Mr. Kavanaugh 30 plus years ago.

Dr. Blasey Ford requested that the FBI investigates her claims first.

Professor Anita Hill who alleged sexual assault against former Supreme Court Justice Clarence Thomas back in 1991 was also interviewed the same day on GMA regarding the ongoing allegations.

I quote Mrs. Hill says "Kavanaugh has the burden of persuasion so the American people have full faith in our judicial process."

In an interview held by President Trump relevant
- President Trump refused to acknowledge Dr Blasey by name.

Mr. President also stated, "The FBI did not want to investigate Dr Blasey Ford's particular claims."

However just weeks ago NCAA Ohio State University football coach Urban Meyer was grilled along these same lines for protecting one of his former employees who has an alleged history of domestic violence.

Subsequently Mr. Meyer maintained employment at The Ohio State University and was given a three-game suspension even though the allegations of domestic violence were alleged confirmed.

Mr. Meyer was eventually interviewed and blasted by the media for not referring to the alleged victim of domestic violence by name.

So why is it okay for our President of the United States to downplay Dr. Blasey Ford by name or credibility?

This particular subject is out of my league and I do not have all the facts so I will not expound.

However what I will say is the last several years look at all the ladies who've come to the forefront with their heroic stories and how each of those stories was handled.

There were trials, careers immediately over, reputations instantly destroyed etc.

What's paramount is it appears none of these situations if compared were handled with any type of judicial or investigative consistency. Therefore what is clear is the double standards in which all the situations are handled.

Regarding Mrs. Hill's reference to the American peoples' faith in our selective judicial process, that faith in the alleged lower of tiers of society has already been tainted from the ground floors up.

There are so many levels and acts of this presidency and their relations had they been from the mentioned alleged lower tiers of society they would have been prosecuted long ago.

This is just another situation to add to an overflowing list of issues that ultimately illuminates the stances taken by Colin Kaepernick, Me Too and so many others who are sick and tired of being tired.

If only more conglomerates had the heart to hop in the fire and take a stance with your relations, power and influences like Nike.

Speaking directly to all you conglomerates regardless your weight classes It's never too late.

Just do it!
