

The Meghan Markle & Prince Harry Effect 1

Inspired by the courage being exhibited by so many to address equality and double standard issues that have and continue to harm our human being.

The issues surrounding oppression, disparities, racial, and equality concerns have had a profound effect in handcuffing our being and to date continues to cripple the prosperity of our local and global communities.

Illuminating the spotlights on our efforts or the lack thereof toward change I would like to embrace all of you who alleges to understand the various movements and messages but disagree with the vehicles of approach.

Unfortunately in today's society it takes the unforeseen and many times a tired of being tired position to birth a process of change.

Specifically acknowledging the power of our youth not limited to the very young, high schoolers, colleges students, an all of you past and present individually and collectively even after being tainted by ill beliefs, false teachings, amongst a host of other poisonous attributes all of you are undisguised angels with your eyes on a global prize which ultimately defines the ingredients and initial steps of change.

Unbeknownst to you via the hip hop culture against all odds you have birth and matured a process to address racial and equality concerns to ultimately destroy the deadly divisions it causes.

Today the greater majority of you exhibit courage that knows no race, cultural barrier, nor color which directly and indirectly addresses some of our society fears head on.

Although America's uniqueness entails a history that highlights the good, the bad, and the ugly we are simply trying to move forward to calmer and more fruitful waters for all.

With emphasis on our freedoms of speeches and expressions today no platform nor professions are off-limits in search of equality and a better tomorrow. In fact the bigger your platforms and followings are should be the better.

There are too many individuals, professionals, and professions to name who are doing their things toward change.

I'll encourage you all and more to keep doing what you are doing because collectively we are starting to rock some boats that has harmed humility, equality, and more for hundreds possibly thousands of years.

The mentioned boat has been socially, culturally, and globally harmful toward unifying a thriving community for all.

Undeniably many people and entities fear change however individually and collectively the heart of the lion we exhibit daily will persevere for a stronger and far better global community. Eventually love and the public backlash will conform and stand up.

Being sensitive to all the past and present interracial couples that were not embraced with love but showered with prejudice the Meghan Markle & Prince Harry Effect is a victory for you all because love rules.

In addition the engagement between Meghan and Harry has affected every industry not limited to fashion, media, racial & cultural barriers, social & equality issues, humanity, and so much more.

If Princess Meghan can break the stereotype, all racial, and royalty barriers with Prince Harry and the Royal family who possibly has been Meghan's #1 fan and supporter surely we can continue to follow.

So much so it has become exceedingly clear humility, being genuinely loving, and having a being equality driven are attributes far greater than self.

No one should benefit more than our homes, hearts, local, and global communities.

The Meghan Markle & Prince Harry Effect 1 is real.
